AVAILABILITY OF WOMEN AS JURORS FOR JUSTICES

According to Judge McIlvaine, They Cannot Serve as Such in Minor Cases

GOVERNED BY ACT OF 1861

Women in various parts of the county, wishing to have a clear understanding of their duties and privileges regarding jury service, have requested Judge McIlvaine to interpret for them the law on this matter as it applies to women.

Judge McIlvaine during the week, through Miss Alice Jones, court stenographed, made the following statement:

"The Attorney General has ruled that the passage of the Federal Suffrage amendment eliminated the word "male" from the Constitution, and therefore women had the right to vote and were also subject to jury duty in the courts of the state without any further legislation.

"The Judges of this county and of many other counties in the State, however, have decided not to summon women this year because of the lack of proper facilities in the court house to care for them. The act under which women could be summoned to serve as jurors in the courts of this county read as follows: "It shall be the duty of the Jury Commissioners, President Judge, or additional law judge * * * to select * * sober, intelligent and judicious persons to serve as jurors in the several courts of such county that year."

"But the Act of 1861, which is the one that provides for the justice's jury, is worded differently, and reads as follows: "That he shall issue a venire directed to any constable of the proper borough * * * commanding him to summon six good and lawful men, citizens of such township, etc."

Under the wording of this Act Judge McIlvaine holds that women could not be summoned as jurors by a justice of the peace without further legislation.

The girl was taken up on the street about a week ago, but refused to give any account of herself. It is said her peoplelive at Noami and word was sent there concerning the girl. County Seat Considering Third-Class City Government

The question of at hird-class city is receiving considerable attention at the hands of the county seat, and the leading men of that community are seeking information that will guide them in any step they may take toward changing their form of government.

Recently the Chamber of Commerce entertained Mayor Smart of Uniontown, at a noon-day luncheon, which was largely attended by members of the organization. Mayor Smart gave his hearers a great amount of information on the subject of third class cities and outlined the form of government under which his city is ruled. He said that conditions in Uniontown are much better generally as a third class city than they were under the borough form of government. He gave approval to the manner inwhich affairs are conducted, but he was opposed to the civil service provision for the police department. This, Mayor Smart said, he believed was a mistake and efforts are now being made to repeal that section of the law. In every other way, however he preferred the third class city to the borough form.

It is likely that the same question will come up in Charleroi within the next few months. Already there has been some opinions expressed on the advisability of taking on a third class city form of government, and it is altogether possible that some move will be made toward presenting the matter to the people for their consideration. It will require the approval of the electorate of the town before any change can be made, which could be done at a general election.

More Interest Taken in Final Election Than in the Primary

TWO TIE FOR TWELFTH PLACE

The final election for the Board of Directors of the Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday afternoon in the Municipal Building. Considerable more interest was displayed in this election than in the primary—a total of 317 ballots being cast against 301 in the primary.

Thursday and Friday saw a steady flow of ballots coming in at headquarters, both through the mail and personal delivery, and at the last moment, several voters hurried in to cast their ballots, after inquiring if they were too latte to be counted in.

As in the primary, the count was open to the public, and a number of spectators took occasion to watch the work of the men as the votes were tallied. Harry W. Setot was Chairman of the Tellers, and working with him were the following men: J. G. Steinbaugh, Harry W. Gehoe, H. E. Price, C. S. Bliss; Joseph Haube, J. K. Brumbaugh and J. W. Fleming.

When the tellers had completed the count, it was found that David M. McCloskey and Lee Showers were tied for the twelfth place and the result was decided by consulting the By-Laws and Constitution, Article 3, section D which reads. (D) In case of a tie in the last place, either in the primary or final election, the selection shall be made by lot, under the direction of the committee in charge of the election. This was done and the place went to Mr. McCloskey.

The new Board of Directors consists of twelve men as follows, the first six on the list serving for two years and the remaining six for one year.

CUPID KNOWS BETTER.

The news comes from Chicago that Assistant Health Commissioner Koehler, with a view to prevent capable stenographers from marrying, has recommended to the city council that the girls be promoted and their pay increased. Being asked if he thought this would put an end to matrimony in the quarter mentioned, Commissioner Koehler is said to have answered emphatically that it would; that increased pay would make the girls independent and, there being no further need of doing so, they would not seek husbands. The age of Commissioner Koehler is not mentioned, but he seems to be young enough to dare publicly to hold that all young working women think of marriage only as a means of bettering their financial condition; and he seems to be old enough to have forgotten all about the way of a man with a maid as well as the way of a maid with a man. He repudiates sentiment as well as ignores facts.

Cupid is a thousand times more correctly informed about this matter. In large urban communities in these times there are independent young spinsters who preach that a girl who "falls for a man" and marries is a fool and ruins her life. but there is much evidence to show that in the majority of cases the working girl is quick to give up her independent salary for the sake of a man when her heart is involved and she believes that the man is the right one.

POLITENESS.

Discussion of the subject of teaching politeness in the public schools in the bulletin of the New York state department of education may be accepted as an indication of the need of such instruction along more effective lines. While politeness is something which may be acquired through instruction during the school age, it will probably be found that the child who is most polite has had teaching along that line before attaining school age. If home training is neglected, the task of the teacher will be greater

Many children are lacking in the principles of politeness—a grace which is not inherent, but is acquired by imitation or others and by careful teaching of the things that make for polite conduct. The rules of the Boy Scout have done much to overcome deficiencies in boys. The Scouts teach that it is not unmanly to exercise those graces in conduct which many boys appear to regard as effeminate. The Scouts are taught that politness is one of the first evidences of manliness, and they are recreant to their obligations if they regard it lightly.

Why should not politeness be made a part of the instruction of every grade school? For a few years at least, it might be necessary to teach politeness in the high schools, for it is not certain that the critic of conduct would find everything to his liking in the higher classes. And many older persons might learn something worth while through the things taught to their children in the schools on politeness.

THEORY AND PRACTICE.

Jacob Margolis, alleged anarchist, has filed an apeal from a decree to strike him from the Pennsylvania roll of attorneys, on the ground that no man can be disbarred for his theories alone. But what if he advocates putting his theories into practice?

Mr. Harding says the anti-tobacco obsession should be without hypocrisy or deceit, which is something flavory for the uplifters to put in their pipes and smoke.

It must be pretty difficult at times for the President-elect when he is giving his callers the once-over to tell the difference between a "best mind" and a job hunter.

The country at the foot of Vesuvius is the most fertile and best cultivated of the kingdom most favored by heaven in all Europe. The celebrated Lacryma Christi vine flourishes beside land totally devastated by lava, as if nature here made a last effort and resolved to perish in her richest array. As you ascend you turn to gaze on Naples and on the fair land about it—the sea sparkles in the sun as if strewn with jewels; but all the splendors of creation are extinguished by degrees, as you enter the region of ashes and smoke, that announce your approach to the volcano. The iron wheels of other years have traced large black furrows in the soil. At a certain height birds are no longer seen; further on plants become very scarce; then even insects find no nourishment. At last all life disappears; you enter the realm of death and the slain earth's dust slips beneath your unassured feet.—Madame De Stael.

Expenses.

Riches are for spending and spending for honor and good actions; therefore extraordinary expense must be limited by the worth of the occasion; for voluntary undoing may be as well for a man's country and for kingdom of heaven; but ordinary expense ought to be limited by a man's estate, and governed with such regard as it be within his compass; and not subject to the deceit and abuse of his servants, and ordered to the best show, that the bills may be less than the estimation abroad. Certainly, if a man will keep out of even hand, his ordinary expenses ought to be but half his receipts and, if he think to wax rich, not but to the third part. It is no baseness for the greatest to descend and look into their own estate.—Lord Bacon.

Cat Very Much on Warpath.

A dog will often chase a person who annoys it, but who ever heard of a cat doing so? However a correspondent in Nova Scotia tells us she was chased by a cat which also made determined efforts to reach the object of her vengeance. The cat—an ordinary household animal—suddenly went wild and chased two people into the house. They managed to lock themselves into a room, but the cat followed and scratched at the door. Eventually it went around to the window and endeavored to get into the room. Seizing the opportunity the two left the room and ran to a neighbor's house. The cat gave chase and overtaking them scratched one of them very badly The cat was eventually killed by the children's father.

Sea Chameleons.

There are no more talented camouflage artists than some kinds of tropical sea-fish. A scientist who has been making a study of their color phases says some of them can take on in turn the hues of coral, rocks, seaweed, sand, almost instantly making themselves invisible to the hunting enemy. They are enabled to do this by the remarkable nervous control of the chromatophores under the skin with which nature has favored them. The cowfish has four color phases, the glasseye, four; that fascinating dandy of the deep, the sergeantmajor, three; while the red gruper displays six and the Nassau gruper can actually provide the astonished spectator with a prismatic progress through eight colors.

The Jungle of Ceylon.

The jungle is as terrible as an army with banners. Sleeping in the little resthouse, when the night has fallen, it comes close up to you, creeping, leaning over you, calling, whispering, vibrating with secret life. A word more—only one—a movement, and you would know the meaning and be gathered into the heart of it; but always there is something fine, impalpable, between, and you catch but a breath of the whisper. Very wonderful is the jungle! In the moonlight of a small clearing I saw the huge bulk of three wild elephants feeding. They vanished like wraiths into the depths. The fireflies were hosting in the air like flitting diamonds. Stealthy life and movement were about me; the jungle, wideawake and aware, moving on its own occasion.—L. Adams Beck, in the Atlantic Monthly.

Who "Jack Robinson" Was.

Authorities are somewhat in conflict as to the origin of the expression, "Before you could say Jack Robinson." One lexicographer believes that the old English play, "Jack Robes On," started the custom. This play antedated the works of Shakespeare and Marlowe. While the sound seems to fit the expression about "Jack Robinson" there was nothing in the play to carry out the resemblance. Far more likely is the explanation that in olden times there was a famous country squire named Jack Robinson, who was noted for the brevity of his visits. The servants would barely finish announcing his name when he was already bowing his farewell to the assembled company and, having uttered some pleasing remark, would be gone.

The Road to Success.

Keep so busy with a real job, that you haven't time to fuss about a possible job. Besides, when you are really busy you won't have time to listen to a lot of empty high-sounding talk that begets nothing but trouble. Let the little squabblers go and attend to business. While the other fellow is telling the world what a bad place it is you will be earning a new dress for the baby. One of these days they will wake up to the fact that to pay the butcher they must keep on pushing. There's no royal road to a place in the sun. For the past several years thousands of fellows have been as near wealth as they will ever get. Yet they have not profited.

Kurdish women in Persia are particularly attractive. They go unveiled, and they have the straight, direct look of men. If you smile at them the direct look breaks into the most alluring of answering smiles. There is something about the Kurdish women graceful and delicious and sweet. They make one think of grapes and perfumed flowers and first love. They won't always let their men take a second wife, settling the matter by promising to murder Number Two or otherwise upset family peace. Not many of them accepted the change in dress from their old free-moving robes ordered by the Shah Nassr-ed-Din, some four decades ago.

Blue Bird for Happiness.

To those of us who believe in the blue bird as a harbinger of happiness, it is gratifying to know that a much more brilliant one than our blue bunting exists, says a correspondent. It lives in California, is a little larger than our kingfisher and has feathers of a glorious blue. Among its companions are humming birds—tiny, bright-colored, timid things, with long, long bills, which they bury deep into the blossoms, hoping, perhaps, for their part, to find happiness hidden therein. Meantime, grey and white mocking birds, with long tails and a very cheeky expression, look on with scorn.

Where Cheeses Are Made.

Cheeses are generally named for the town or district from which they come. American cheese is the name used for that form of the English cheddar generally liked in this country. Brie, Camembert, Coulommier, Neufchatel and Roquefort are French cheeses from different parts of France, and differing in some cases very much in flavor and appearance. Edam and Gonda cheese are from Holland. Grupere, the cheese of many holes, is from Switzerland, and the strong-smelling Limburger comes from Belgium, and not from Germany, as is often supposed.

Bride Cake.

The origin of bride cake dates back to earliest times. In fact, it was an introduction of the Romans to the bridal banquet, with the view of counteracting the evils of indigestion which might arise from too free indulgence in the rich offerings of the marriage table. In his work, "De Re Rustica," Cato gives us the recipe for this medicate-farraco. It consisted of meal, aniseed, cummin, and sundry other aromatic ingredients, and it may be said, with much truth, that the spicy compound was better adapted to stave off indigestion than the modern cake to which it gave origin.

Delaware's Nicknames.

During the American Revolution, the commander of a brigade in Delaware was a veteran cock-fighter, who always bet on "the blue hen's chickens." Thence the name came to be applied to the members of his brigade, and finally to the state itself. Delaware has also been nicknamed "the Diamond state," as being small and precious.

FRANKLIN

Correct principles at the beginning bring the best results in the end. This is well illustrated by the performance of the Franklin Car today.

The fundamentals of satisfactory motoring are light weight, flexibility and direct air cooling. These were original principles with the Franklin Car nineteen years ago. Today they give comfort, economy and long life, or, expressed another way—

20 miles to the gallon of gasoline
12,500 miles to the set of tires

AGED, BUT ABLE TO DO GOOD DAYS' WORK

Daniel Smith, a farmer living near Centerville, although past 80 years of age, believes he is as young physically as many boys in their teens. He made a remarkable record for work during the past year, one that his friends believe cannot be equalled.

During 1920 Mr. Smith, with his trusty mattock, cleared off one and one-half acres of new ground. dug up the ground and planted it to potatoes, which during the summer he cultivated, reaping a big crop, which he harvested himself. He also set out 1,000 strawberry plants which he cultivated during the summer, and in addition, last harvest cut with a sickle two and one-half acres of rye. In the fall he cut and husked 310 shocks of corn and tied the fodder. In addition to all this he had to his credit 40 days' work on the public roads for which he was paid $4 per day.

DRAWN FOR JURY SERVICE AT FEBRUARY TERM

Two additional panels of traverse jurors for the February term of common pleas court were drawn on Friday, one panel to report March 7 and the other March 21. Those from Charleroi drawn on the first panel are, Ed. Brady, S. L. Woodward and R. J. Whitehead, and for March 21st, J. Stewart Miller.

Marriage license was issued in Cumberland, Md., to Ezio Lorenzi and Blanche Lorenzi on Friday, both of Charleroi.

Concrete of Cinder.

Some time ago some walls made of concrete were erected at Columbia university, and since then they have been subjected to five four-hour tests by fire, when the average temperature reached was 1,700 degrees Fahrenheit. At the end of each test a stream of water was applied for ten minutes while the walls were hot. Notwithstanding these tests, the walls, for all practical purposes, are as good as when erected, and the percentages of coal and fine material in such cinders appear to have very little effect on their fire-resisting qualities. The pieces of coal which were next to the surface in these walls were burned to ash but the ash remained in place and acted as non-conductor of heat. Several particles of pure coal were found within two inches of the surface.

Havana's Wealth of Color.

Havana is not only a beautiful city, but a truly fascinating one for all not utterly devoid of imagination. Her houses, thick walled, ponderous structures are built entirely of stone, brick or concrete. But, no matter what the material, all walls, inside and out, are plastered with the smoothest possible finish and then tinted with every shade of the rainbow, and a few others, shell pink, cream, lilac and magenta predominating. Colors are matters purely of taste with the owners, but they seldom clash and they lend to the city a subdued but agreeable brightness, quite in contrast with the long, somber rows of buildings which mar many residence avenues in the north.

No Success Without Effort.

It's seldom you can do what you want to do the first time you try. To be sure if you have been working along a given line there may not be any difficulty in your doing what is comparatively new without trouble. On the other hand there are few people who are gifted enough to walk off with the palm the first time the task comes up. Failure is not so much a matter of lack of ability as it is of unorganized effort. When young men learn to plod along until they are masters of the thing they would do there will be no question about success. Too many want to succeed without effort. Nature is a little slow in rewarding such.—Grit.

Ship Workmen Used to Rats.

Workmen who are called to shipboard for the purpose of making alterations and repairs get so used to the presence of rats that they pay no attention to them. A ship's plumber, for instance, will often work while a fat rat sits only a few feet away and watches him. Calcutta is said to be the greatest rat exchange in the world, the rodents finding their way to and from that city on the ships. Workmen on vessels in that port must take special precautions to protect their lunch or they will go hungry. A coat hung up on a nail with any lunch in the pocket will be robbed by the rats unless watched by the owner.

Species of Nuts Highly Valued.

Pine nuts, which are the seeds of several species of pines, are now fairly common in the markets of our big cities. Pistachios are produced in California on a considerable scale. They have long been prized by confectioners for their delicate flavor and attractive green color. They are small and not unlike a bean in shape. The "ilchi" nut is really a dried fruit surrounded by a nutlike shell. It somewhat resembles a raisin in flavor. Introduced into this country by the Chinese it has already become quite well known.

TORNADOES WIN FROM THE CALIFORNIA HIGH

The Robertson Tornadoes had the California High school team as an attraction last night, and won handily by a score of 48 to 12. Next Friday they will have the Ellsworth High as an attraction on the H. T. A. C. floor. All invited and the admission free. Lineup:

Tornados—48		California—12
DeMarco	F	Sylvester
Duttine	F	Lake
Wagner	C	Emery
Crytzer	G	Brown
H. McGuire	G	Dalton

Field goals, DeMarco 5, Duttine 4, Wagner 4, Crytzer 4, McGuire 4, Lake 2, Dalton 2, Sylvester. Fouls, Duttine 6 out of 8; Sylvester 2 out of 5.

DONORA'S CAMPAIGN IS PROVING A SUCCESS

The Donora campaign for a Chamber of Commerce, under direction of Mr. Allspach, is proving to be a great success. A "smoker" was held Thursday evening, at which time Congressman Begg made the principal address, and which appeared to be quite pleasing to those present. The membership goal for Donora has been placed at 350, which number the promoters believe it will be possible to obtain before the campaign closes.

MAKING GOOD PROGRESS ON MODERN COAL HOIST

Structural iron workers are making good progress on the coal hoist being erected by the Pittsburg Steel Company at the new coal harbor to be established in front of the blast furnaces, just below Lock No 4. When the new structure is ready for operation all coal loaded in barges for thesteel company will be taken to the new dock for unloading. The appliances will be of the latest pattern, and will be capable of unloading crafts in record time.

MANY SCARLET FEVER CASES IN UNIONTOWN

There are about fifty cases of scarlet fever in Uniontown at the present time, according to reports made to the Board of Health. A majority of the cases are not considered immediately serious in spite of the fact that several of the sufferers are said to be in a bad way. Health officials say the schools will not be closed.

George Latimer McCook, son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis F. McCook of Fifth avenue, Pittsburg is making his residence while in Charleroi with Mr. and Mrs. Willis McCook, Jr., of Crest avenue, being a brother to Mr. McCook. He is employed at the Pittsburg Steel Co., Monessen.

Praise for the Mango.

The secretary of the chamber of commerce in Mexico City says that nobody knows the real Mexico until he has eaten a ripe mango in Mexico. And, of course, you can't eat a ripe mango anywhere else, because a ripe mango cannot be moved far. A ripe mango, according to him, is the most luscious, juicy and delicious fruit in the world, and the correct way to eat it is to get in a state of nature in a park or orchard or forest, or by the seashore, and then go to the mat with the fruit. Enough of the juice and meat will get inside to make you deliriously happy, and then you borrow an ocean or something to wash the juice off the exterior, before it becomes sirup. If you have once eaten a ripe mango in Mexico you will understand the low estimate in which the natives hold gold and silver and precious stones and all riches of pale civilization.—Chicago Daily News.

The Whistling Intruder.

At a studio on a busy street of a Colorado city a pupil was singing the jewel aria from Faust. It was twilight, says the Boston Herald, and there were many people passing by outside. Suddenly the singer stopped. "Some one outside is whistling the accompaniment," she said. But an investigation failed to discover anyone. As the girl proceeded, however, the whistling began again. Each time the accompanist came to a leggiero staccato passage, the whistler followed the higher melodies, keeping time with the performer. By closer searching the culprit was discovered, perched upon a tall lamp post. A mocking bird had paused on his homeward way to take part in a performance of Gounod's music. His intrusion disconcerted the studio and attracted a group of listeners in the street, who wonderingly enjoyed the mocking bird's imitation of the pianist's technique.

Legs and Health.

According to experts, the general health as well as one's state of mind are influenced largely by the way we use our legs. Persons with irritable tendencies invariably acquire the habit of crossing the legs. For them to keep the legs parallel is to invite a feeling of uneasiness. Brain-workers, too, find it easy to fall into the habit of crossing their legs. When overwhelmed with work, this is the favorite attitude. Engross them with important problems requiring initiative and the legs unfold. This is because the best train of thought happens when the legs are thrust straight out. Sitting with the legs crossed is also a frequent cause of obesity. If you wish to remain slim and possess a good figure, don't cross the legs. Instead copy your cat, and stretch all you can.

Impertinent Petitions.

When we are invited to a banquet we take what is set before us; and were one to call upon his host to set fish upon the table or sweet things, he would be deemed absurd. Yet, in a word, we ask the gods for what they do not give; and that, although they have given us so many things!—From "The Golden Sayings of Epictetus."

Ever Meet Anyone Like Her?

A man who lives in a West side boarding house describes his landlady: "She is a kind of parallelogram; that is, an oblong, angular figure which cannot be described and which is equal to anything; and any two meals in her house are together less than a square meal."—New York Times.

WORLD IS FAR FROM FAMINE

Only One-Third of Its Potential Food-Producing Area at Present Under Cultivation.

Only one-third of the world's potential food-producing area is under cultivation, and the crops raised on that third, thanks to agricultural science, increase yearly.

The United States has only some 400 millions of its 935 million acres of arable land under cultivation, yet it raises, among other things, one-sixth of the world's corn supply. The farms of America raise less than half as much wheat to the acre as those of England, yet even with her present standard size could raise enough corn to meet the needs of Europe on the land that is now lying unused.

Russia produces only ten bushels to the acre of corn, but when science has access to her untold millions of acres, and brings their capacity up to the standard of our own farms, then she alone will be able to supply the world's cereal needs, with the exception of maize and rice.

Less than a third of the world's population gets what we should call three good meals a day, yet the working capabilities of the, from our viewpoint, underfed continents of Asia and Africa will compare very well with either Europe or America. The average meat consumption of the world is 39 pounds a head, yet both the Australian and the American eat nearer 180 pounds per head, and the Englishman is not far behind with about 120 pounds.

It is evident, then, that we can tighten our belts a hole or two yet without running any undue risk of starvation.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"CRUCIFIX" FISH" ODD CURIO

Joseph Reichenbach of 80 Henry street, has a curiosity in the way of a fish which throughout the West Indian country is known as the "crucifix fish," and is regarded with a mixture of reverential awe by the natives, who throw specimens caught in their nets back into the sea and cross themselves when they come on the skull of one.

The dried skeleton of this fish shows plainly on the under side of the skull the figure of a man on a crucifix with a halo about his head. On the other side of the skull is a figure of a monk with a cowl bending before an altar.

Mr. Reichenbach prizes the specimen very highly. He keeps it in a little wooden box like a coffin. Formerly he was barber in the Hotel of St. George, and one day John L. Sullivan, the famous pugilist, happened in and Joe showed him a specimen of the odd fish. Sullivan was deeply impressed, and expressed a wish to have one like it, so Joe made him a gift of a duplicate of the fish.

There are other peculiarities about this fish skeleton which Joe has. When it is lifted up and shifted there is a rattling in the skull like dice rolling. Those are what are known as the "air bones."—Brooklyn Eagle.

Determining Poisonous Vapors.

In its efforts to determine the extent to which the vapors of fires are actively poisonous, the United States bureau of mines has sought vacuum-bottle samples of air from different places in burning buildings in 25 cities. Certain indications have been reported from the contents of such bottles as have been returned. Most dreaded at fires is carbon monoxide, but only one sample of air from above ground showed this gas, the quantity in that case being too small to harm when breathed a short time. The air and smoke in cellars, however, contain considerably more. The ventilation giving good combustion apparently disposes of any carbon monoxide produced, but there may be some accumulation in close places where ventilation is poor. Air charged with dense smoke was quite free from poisonous gas, the effect of such air being mechanical irritation from breathing the smoke; and the most poisonous air found was a sample containing little smoke that was taken from a poorly ventilated space among cases in a basement.

Wonderful Theatrical Setting.

A variegated Richard III. was offered in Berlin to an audience that gasped a little at first but proved appreciative when the first surprise was over. For Richard was clothed symbolically in black when he was brooding, in blood-red when he ascended to the throne, and this actual ascent was presented literally by a flight of steep blood-red stairs that lead to the coveted seat. The scene was so drenched with the dreadful color that when, later on, in the dream, the phantom warriors were luridly clad, too, the appearance of Richmond's forces in pure white completed the symbol. No attention was paid to court customs and costumes; all else paled besides the enhanced effect of Richard's demoniacal appearance.

Proper Verb.

"What do you do?"

"I follow the races."

"Follow?"

"Follow is the term. I'm never ahead of them."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

A Penalty, Indeed.

"Perhaps the penalty for bootlegging is not severe enough."

"It isn't," replied Uncle Bill Bottletop. "A bootlegger ought to be made to [illegible]"

Bristol of Interest to America.

Few cities in England have more claims to the attention of the United States than the ancient town of Bristol. It was Bristol that gave the world the Cabots, those daring sailors who discovered the mainland of America, and thus destroyed the belief that beyond the West Indies were untold miles of open sea and the end of the world. Bristol is one of the oldest cities in England, it having been founded by Caesar at the time the Romans swept down on the island and declared it a province of the Imperial city. A great wall was built about the place, and portions of it still stand, mute evidence through the centuries of the thoroughness and strength of Roman empire building.

About Venetian Glass.

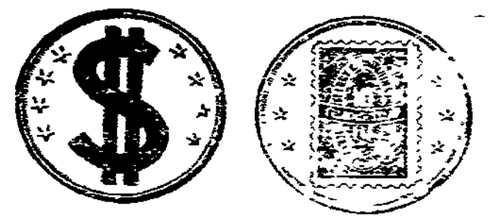
Across the lagoon from Venice is Murano, the little island birthplace of Venetian glass. Like a great many "objects of art" its manufacture commenced in the Middle ages and developed its full glory during the Renaissance. In 1291 certain Italian glass makers took out a register of nobility, or "libro d'oro," and formed a guild which very carefully guarded the secret process of manufacturing Venetian glass. About the Fifteenth century colored Venetian glass won fame, and in the next century lace patterns and mirrors were created. Plain glass was also enameled and guilded when made into bric-a-brac. Later variegated or marbled glasses were produced.

Time to "Get Up."

An author who has helped to make a portion of New England famous presided at a banquet in a suburban town some nights ago. He had fittingly eulogized the principal guest of the evening, and in conclusion told this story: "An old farmer drove into town one day and, going into a feed store, bought half a peck of oats. Stabling his horse by the side of the road, he gave him a royal lunch. When it was ended the farmer hitched up, got into the buggy, took up the lines and addressed the nag, 'Now that you've been fed, git up!' The toastmaster turned and looked at the guest for a moment, and sat down.

Where Earth's "Crust" Is Weak.

There are few other places on earth where there has been such terrific folding and cracking of the earth's rocky armor-plates as in western South America. There a range of mountains whose peaks frequently top 20,000 feet in height lies close to an ocean which sinks to profound depths within a short distance from the shore. Obviously, the earth's crust—if "crust" is not an outworn term in this connection—is weak and unstable along the Pacific coast of the southern continent, and the frequency of earthquakes there is easy to understand. The explanation is not so clear in all earthquake regions.



Money Will Obtain Necessities— So Will S.H. Green Stamps

When it comes to obtaining merchandise for the home, personal needs and comforts, the similarity between S.H. Green Stamps and money is remarkable.

A close study of S.H. Premiums will show that practical articles—articles of general usefulness—are in the majority. The very fact that such household needs as Carpet Sweepers, Preserving Kettles, Sauce Pans, O-So-Ezy Mops, Sewing Tables, Coffee Pots, Silverware, etc., may be had in exchange for S.H. Stamps is proof enough that the "Sperry" service renders a practical and profitable aid.

When you obtain a token of definite purchasing power simply by paying cash and asking for S.H. Green Stamps, plain, common sense says: "Take advantage" and common sense is a reliable friend and advisor.

CRUDOLEUM

THE GUARANTEED REMEDY FOR HAIR AND SCALP TROUBLES

Stubborn cases of itching, irritated scalp are easily overcome by Crudoleum. It is a harmless, high grade light amber petroleum, which has been tried and proven to be especially adapted for removing dandruff and other causes of falling, fading hair. Able authorities have proved this fact by many convincing trials. As time rolls on, the public, after using many different remedies for hair care and ridding the scalp of disease and dandruff, are returning to petroleum, but to the higher, cleaner grade, and not to the thick dark, muddy looking petroleums which are apt to contain suspended particles of unsanitary substances, lime, free carbon or free sulphur. This accounts for the possibility that a few who have used a common grade of petroleum on the scalp may have it are telling their friends about it. If you are unable to get it from your done so without much success.

We offer you Crudoleum, believing it is the best grade obtainable for the purposes for which we recommend it and you get to appreciate it as soon as you use it. It is a harmless application that is rapidly finding its way into the homes of the people. The price is only 35c for a half pint bottle. Get a bottle today at F. J. John; he is authorized to return the purchase price if you are not satisfied after giving Crudoleum a fair trial. The antiseptic, healing powers of Crudoleum and its clean, sparkling appearance and light color is what is making it so popular. Those who have tried druggist, send 40c to Wm. M.
